

COBALT STUDIOS — Scenic Artists Training Program 2021 - 2023 Student Information

Cobalt Studios provides quality apprentice-style training to people interested in pursuing careers in Scenic Art. It is a resident school. A secluded farm on 28 acres of fields and woods is its setting. The farmhouse is large enough to accommodate up to 12 people. Students and guest artists all stay on the grounds. Kitchen and laundry facilities are large enough for all. The painting studio is located within a short walking distance from the house. Studio facilities include a painting deck; paint mixing room, library, and drafting facilities.

The nearest municipalities are Monticello and Liberty, both about 15 minutes away. The surrounding communities in this summer vacationland are pretty quiet during the winter school months. The Catskills region offers various winter sports such as skiing, sledding and skating. Students can anticipate having the opportunity to visit museums and see productions in New York City and nearby communities.

Student Life

Based on a forty-hour week, students participate in both classwork and apprentice work. Outside of this time, students can expect to do homework and their share of chores in the house, on the grounds, and in the studio. These activities, as well as meal hours, are scheduled but flexible. The remaining time is free for the students.

Cobalt Studios expects compliance with State and Federal laws concerning drugs and alcohol.

Admission

Cobalt Studios will accept up to 8 students for the two-year program. Applicants for admission do not need an extensive theatre background, although a basic familiarity with theatre and art is necessary. We do consider a strong foundation in drawing to be essential. All applicants must be high school graduates. Rather than the customary academic standards, Cobalt Studios admission is based on the applicant's enthusiasm, ability, references, and potential in professional theatre. Cobalt Studios maintains a racially and sexually non-discriminating policy.

What You Get

You get the most incredibly detailed training you can imagine!! Classes, information and practice are always oriented towards work in the profession. Contacts you make here become your lifetime support system. Upon completion of the Scenic Artist Training Program the student receives a Graduation Certificate.

Cobalt Studios is a non-accredited institution. Several accredited universities and colleges have given credit to their students for attending our program. Some of these include: University of North Carolina School of the Arts, University of Minnesota, Ohio University, and the Hong Kong School of Performing Arts. The option to do so lies with that institution.

Financial

The non-refundable application fee covers telephone costs, application processing, and the cost of the overnight interview. It does not include the transportation to and from that interview.

Tuition covers a student's share of class and art supplies, utilities, insurance, and field trips. Room & Board includes laundry, all meals in house and on the job excluding mutually agreed upon meals eaten out. Personal expenses and equipment such as personal trips, clothing, bedding, and personal tools are NOT included in the fees. These will be provided by the student. Transportation (and Room & Board) to any offsite contracted learning location or job site will be covered by Cobalt Studios.

Students will be responsible for keeping their own rooms clean. Any excessive wear or damage to the housing will be deducted from the responsible student's room deposit.
